Happenings of Interest From Different Sections.

The price of milk, which Ludlow milkmen recently raised to seven cents, has been reduced to six cents.

William Sherly of Granville, a trapper, got caught in a bear trap while removing leaves and the prongs of the trap were driven into his hand, making a painful wound.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Leuey and three small children of Burlington were poisoned by eating canned tomato soup Monday evening. They were recovering yesterday.

Harrison Langdon of Castleton, who is not yet five years old, planted the seed and raised from one hill of pumpkins, one weighing 43 pounds, one of 24 pounds, and three more large ones.

Forty-four children were born in Burlington during the month of October, according to statistics in the city clerk's office. Of this number 27 were boys and 27 were girls. The youngest mother was 16 and the oldest 44 years old.

Beginning December 1, the mail route from Topham to East Corinth will be discontinued and mail for Topham will be forwarded from the Groton postoffice. By this arrangement Topham will receive Boston morning mail about noon.

W. H. Wyatt of Troy, N. Y., owner of the Glenwood hotel at Hydeville in Castleton, which was burned recently, says he shall not rebuild the hotel this year, but if he does not sell the property he will build a $40,000 house next year.

William Wilson of Barton, 92 years old and blind, cast his eighteenth presidential ballot November 5. He first voted for Henry Clay and has always cast a Republican ballot until this year, when he voted the Progressive ticket.

Arthur O'Leary, the St. Johnsbury station agent, who was shot about two weeks ago at Charlestown, N. H., by an Italian, is making a good recovery. The bullet struck him near the breast bone and followed a rib, taking a slightly downward course, and can be felt at a point on his left side, just below the arm pit.

The Burlington board of aldermen met Saturday evening and passed a resolution authorizing a bond issue of $40,000 with which to retire temporary loans used by the city in permanent construction work. The board also authorized a sum not to exceed $50 to pay the expenses of the city attorney in consulting an engineer regarding the recent report made to the public service commission on wires and poles in Burlington.

A valuable gray horse belonging to Frank A. Larrow was killed recently on the Putney road. The animal was being driven by Holland Allen when it was struck in the chest by the shaft of a wagon in which Joseph Whalen was riding. The collision was due to the extreme darkness and the fact that Whalen's horse was blind in one eye and did not turn quickly enough to get out of the way of the other team. One lung of the Larrow horse was pierced and the animal died to death. This is the second valuable live horse that Mr. Larrow has lost within a few weeks.

Judge George M. Powers, acting as chancellor, has handed down a decision in the case of J. O. Frost, of Vernon against the Connecticut River Power company in which the orator is allowed $400 damages for trees cut by the defendant company. The defendant is permanently enjoined from further cutting trees on Mr. Frost's land which borders the company's transmission line in Vernon, except eight small trees at the north end of the lot. According to the decision the timber already cut belongs to the plaintiff. C. C. Fitts, attorney for the power company, has served notice that he will take the case to the supreme court on appeal.

A serious accident took place late on Monday evening on the construction job of Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins, which firm is building the South Vernon-Battleboro link for the Boston & Maine railroad. One of the air brakes which work automatically on the cars used in carrying and dumping gravel failed to work properly and finally gave way to work Giovanni Antonio, one of the workmen on the job, was caught on the chest. Two ribs were fractured, one of the spinal vertebrae was fractured, and the victim was injured internally. He was taken to the Battleboro Memorial hospital and will probably recover.

Obituary.

Wilbur F. Kimball, after a lingering illness of about eight months, entered into rest September 29, 1912. He was a life-long resident of Topham, Vt., where he was born December 16, 1824. He had five brothers and six sisters, children of John and Fanny Kimball, all of whom crossed the shadowy valley before him. He was married to Miss Anna D. Allen of his native town April 15, 1850. To them were given a son, Warren G., now a resident of Barre, Vt., and a daughter, Flora A., who passed from labor to reward, in the triumphs of faith, March 2, 1879. The writer, a native of the same town, has been acquainted with the family more than half a century. Mr. and Mrs. Kimball were exemplary Christians, whose lives were a constant benediction to the community in which they lived. They were active members of the West Topham Free Baptist church many years and staunch supporters of every good cause. They walked together more than three score years in loving harmony, each mindful of the comfort and happiness of the other. The aged companion has a heartfelt sympathy of a large circle of friends in this hour of her deep affliction. She is comforted with the assurance that he has only gone on a little way before. Other near relatives are the son and wife and their daughters, Miss Avis E. Kimball of Barre and Mrs. Murray P. Aris of Plymouth, N. H. Funeral services were held at the late home in West Topham, conducted by Rev. O. C. Barnard, pastor of the M. E. church of Waits River, Vt., who spoke words of comfort from Job 13:15, "Though He slay me yet will I trust in Him."

Card of Thanks.

We wish to extend our thanks and appreciation to those who showed such great kindness at the time of our late affliction, also for the assistance and sympathy at the time of the funeral.

Mrs. Ann D. A. Kimball,
Mr. and Mrs. Warren G. Kimball.

WANTED—OLD TEXTBOOKS.

Government Seeks to Gather Finest Collection.

The government wants gifts of old or rare textbooks—at least, the government bureau of education does. Government bureaus are so in the habit of giving away documents instead of receiving them that a request like this warrants attention.

The point is that the United States bureau of education is endeavoring to together the finest possible collection of textbooks in English, French, German, Spanish, Italian, Scandinavian, Dutch, and Greek languages published within the last two centuries, and hopes that possibly some of the many educators and investigators who have been recipients of the government's bounty in receiving valuable documents in the past may return the compliment now with an occasional textbook of bygone days. An antiquated speller of a musty Xenophon may be just the book needed to fill an important gap in textbook history. The library of congress is aiding in the task, and the bureau would appreciate gifts from individuals as well. "When this library is complete," says Commissioner Claxton, "it should become the Mecca of all students of this place of education."

In the meantime, the bureau continues to be generous in its opportunities to investigators. It now has one of the largest and most complete libraries of education in the world, containing about 70,000 bound volumes and 80,000 or more reports, pamphlets, and periodicals. Almost any of these books not obtainable in ordinary libraries may be secured by teachers and bona fide students of education, either through the local library or directly through the bureau of education, under certain conditions. Requests should be made to the librarian.

Another important assistance rendered by the bureau is to commissions investigating particular phases of education. Without cost other than that of coming to Washington, representatives of these commissions may find practically everything that is now in print in pamphlets, books, or magazines on any subject of education, including educational legislation, frequently accomplishing in a few days or weeks what would otherwise take months. The bureau of education thus fulfills a peculiar public service in acting as a source of educational information, and real seekers after knowledge will find every aid and encouragement given them by those in charge.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar, if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory, or money refunded.
